Distribution

The attached press release appeared in the mail from Redab. Redab is in some financial trouble, and I understood C-G to say that he is no longer in direct control of the letting of Millbank. Whatever the facts, I call your attention to the last page, which is notable for two facts.

First, it purports to summarize material from "HBI Research", but no specific source is offered.

Second, it contains a graph with various measurements of air quality (including RSP and nicotine) and compares them to "recommended". The recommended PPM for nicotine appears to be 50, and RSP to be 75. Nicotine scarcely appears in the actual measurements, except twice at about 5 ppm in Alvik Strand.

In other words, the overall results are good, but I do have questions about the "recommended" levels. I would be interested to know if these same recommended levels are being used elsewhere, and, if they are, by whom.
